

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS' GALLERY

Group Workshop FAQs

What workshops are available for groups at The Photographers' Gallery?

We offer two types of 90-minute Group Workshops to get students looking, thinking talking and making. Upon booking a workshop, you will be offered a choice of either a Visual Literacy or camera obscura workshop.

What happens in a Visual Literacy Workshop?

Visual Literacy workshops are led by a photographer-educator, and centre around an exhibition currently on show at the gallery.

Students take part in group discussion, image analysis and practical assignments responding to themes in the exhibition, all aimed at improving visual literacy. In the workshop, students will:

- Consider the formal elements and vocabulary used to describe photographs
- Explore how ideas, feelings and meanings are conveyed and interpreted through images
- Reflect on how the context of an image shapes how we read it
- Develop an understanding of the term visual literacy

Visual Literacy workshops take place in our Eranda Studio and Galleries, and include a visit to an exhibition.

What happens in a camera obscura workshop?

In our camera obscura workshops, students will explore the history and science of photography using The Photographers' Gallery's own camera obscura.

After experimenting with the camera obscura room, students will take part in a practical activity, working in pairs create their own hand-held pinhole camera obscuras.

In the workshop, students will:

- Develop an understanding of the science behind how a camera obscura works, and its applications throughout history
- Work collaboratively to make functioning hand-held camera obscuras
- Explore different ways of capturing images using the camera obscura

This workshop takes place in our Eranda Studio space, and we do not visit the exhibitions as part of the session. A self-led visit of the exhibitions before or after your workshop can be arranged on request.
