Welcome

Thank you for your interest in The Photographers' Gallery.

At The Photographers' Gallery, we explore how photography is connecting, captivating and radically changing the world we live in.

We are looking for trustees to join the Gallery's Board. Currently we're specifically looking for an experienced technology leader. This is an important time to join the Gallery and an opportunity to support our digital transformation as we go through an exciting period of transition and reimagining.

On the borders of busy Oxford Street and vibrant Soho, the Gallery is home to photography experts, novices and the photo-curious; artists and students; tourists, locals and passers-by; and an enthusiastic and committed staff team.

I hope you are interested in being part of our future. If you are, we'd love to hear from you.

Amanda Gray
Chair, The Photographers' Gallery

About The Photographers' Gallery

The Photographers' Gallery is a place for the discovery, exploration and understanding of photography, and has been since we opened the doors to our first home in Covent Garden over 50 years ago. While building on this rich legacy, our mission is to be the home for next generation photography.

Through our in-person and online programme – from exhibitions, talks, lates and workshops, to courses, tours, and more – we aim to inspire conversation and collaboration, and explore the beauty, complexity and future of photography. Our core values are to:

- Expose a fuller picture – by revealing narratives that go beyond the frame.
- Develop future creators – by nurturing artists and new audiences, and actively seeking underrepresented voices in who we work with and welcome through our doors.
- Be one social space – a place for sharing and collaboration, joining up everything we do both virtually and in Soho.

Whether our visitors are in person or online, we aim to share extraordinary work from photographers and image-makers of all ages, races, genders, sexualities, backgrounds and abilities.

We believe that a diverse and equitable society is essential for creativity and growth. We strive to be a fully inclusive and progressive environment for everyone who visits, takes part and works with us.
